NEWSLETTER, APRIL 2017

In less than two months, Britain will go to the polls. Theresa May has called for a General Election to be held on June 8. Here we consider the impact and implications of the election. One of our most unusual homes in over 60 years is on the market: a £7.5m Kensington church conversion. And we launch our new London Living Guide.

It's all included in our April newsletter with news, views and the best homes for sale across Belgravia, Kensington and Chelsea.

INSIDE A £7.5M KENSINGTON CHURCH CONVERSION

There is something indelibly English about ecclesiastical properties. They conjure up images of church spires and stained glass windows pierced by shafts of sunlight. And they always attract a lot of interest, simply because they are so distinctive. This month, our first church conversion in more than sixty years goes on the market. The property almost has the feel of a rectory or vicarage, but it is in the heart of the capital – a winning combination. Read more.

MEET THE NEIGHBOURS: DAN JONES,

Dan Jones is changing the face of history, armed with a sense of humour and passion for the past. 10 THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT PROPERTY SURVEYS

There is a bewildering number of surveys to choose from when buying a new home. Should you pick something simple or opt for something more sophisticated? It is a familiar dilemma faced by thousands of homeowners. Malcolm Marsdin, a leading London residential surveyor, reveals his top tips in our essential guide to surveys. Read more.

SPRING MARKET WATCH: STAMP DUTY

It's one year on since the new stamp duty reforms were introduced by the ex-chancellor George Osborne. But what has been the impact? "People are becoming resilient to the higher stamp duty fees," says James Bailey, Chief Executive of Henry & James. "We are seeing buyers factoring in the increased charges when making an offer. It would be political suicide for the Government to reverse this policy now. However, we have seen a surge of interest with more enquires from people looking to buy new homes. This is good news for London as we move into the spring market."

CONFESSIONS OF AN ESTATE AGENT

"We were invited to the home of the late Victor Lownes this month. Victor helped set up Playboy with Hugh Hefner. We expected a short half-hour meeting to advise on a lease, but it turned into a three-hour tour of the home, where Mrs Lownes very kindly took the time to show us her Sixties and Seventies' memorabilia, including photographs of the cars, properties and the lifestyle. There is never a dull moment in the life of a London estate agent."
